

October 25, 2012

ANDREWANDREW INSTA-REVIEW WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF?, NEUTRAL HERO AND WILD WITH HAPPY

By AndrewAndrew

Neutral Hero at The Kitchen

Neutral Hero, now playing at downtown institution The Kitchen, is Richard Maxwell's first play in five years that he's both written and directed. In the Iliad-like piece, he sets himself the unenviable task of achieving total neutrality on the part of his protagonist (and, impossibly, on the part of the audience and their feelings toward said protagonist). What would compel someone to do such a thing? Are the results worth the effort of creative team and more importantly is it worth the effort of the audience? Find out in our full review!

http://www.papermag.com/2012/10/andrewandrew_insta-review_whos.php