STEVE REICH AND MUSICIANS

Steve Reich and Musicians will present their only New York performances this season in a series of four concerts at The Kitchen Center for Video and Music from May 16 to May 19 at 9pm.

Steve Reich and Musicians have toured exclusively in the U.S. and Europe performing works by Mr. Reich. This series of concerts will include music composed over the last ten years exhibiting Reich's development from his early work with the repetitive phase-shifting pattern construction of Violin Phase to the more polyphonic, tonal orchestration of Music for 18 Musicians, which received its world premier in a sold out concert at Town Hall in Spring, 1976.

The music of Steve Reich has been compared to others composing in what has come to be called the "Minimal" style, but, while there are similarities, this series of concerts will enable the listener to follow the very individual development of one of America's most important composers.

Monday, May 16: Clapping Music; Pendulum Music; Violin Phase; Music for 18 Musicians

Tuesday, May 17: Music for Pieces of Wood; Four Organs; Phase Patterns; Six Pianos; Music for Mallet Instruments, Voices and Organ

Wednesday, May 18: Pendulum Music; Violin Phase; Six Pianos; Drumming

Thursday, May 19: Four Organs; Music for Mallet Instruments, Voices and Organ; Music for 18 Musicians
