

The New York Times

October 25, 2013

WEEKEND Arts MOVIES
PERFORMANCES

THE Listings

Theater

Off Broadway

Dance

NEAL MEDLYN (Friday and Saturday) Since 2006, Neal Medlyn has been transforming himself into a pantheon of pop idols, including Lionel Richie and Miley Cyrus. Appropriately, he saved Michael Jackson for last. His seven-part Pop Star Series, in which impersonation meets homage meets critique, culminates with “King,” and it should tell us as much about Mr. Medlyn as it does about the king of pop. A retrospective of the series is open from 2 to 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday in the theater. At 8 p.m., the Kitchen, 512 West 19th Street, Chelsea, (212) 255-5793, thekitchen.org; $15, $12 for students and 65+. (Burke)