On March 5,6,7 & 8, Dancing in The Kitchen presents a new work by Wendy Perron.

I have noticed that however many decisions I make during the process of choreography, control and choice are really illusions. This new piece is built on several ideas, including incorporating the dancers' qualities and contributions, using video sound and image as accompaniment, and spatial notions of lateral and vertical alleyways. But whatever my "concerns" are--and they can all be traced to an interest in the unity of thought and movement--the work emerges as it will.

(Wendy Perron)

The work presented at The Kitchen will be about forty minutes long and includes dancers Paula Clements, Caitlin Corbett, Maria Cutrona, Susan Rethorst, and Perron. Video material is by Joan Blair. This is a Roxanne Dance Foundation project and is partially supported by a grant from the New York State Council on the Arts.

WENDY PERRON has been choreographing in New York since 1970, has written extensively on performance, and has danced with Trisha Brown and several other choreographers.
