NEW YORK— Our team at ARTINFO and Modern Painters used to hide behind the shroud of anonymity in our "Weekly Ten" feature, recommending shows, movies, books, and events without saying who we were, handily ducking blame if the things we promoted turned out to be real stinkers. Those days are gone. In this new weekly feature, check out what we'll be enjoying this week, hear us explain why we're making each suggestion, and find out who to write that testy email to if you disapprove.

ANDREW M. GOLDSTEIN

Tom Thayer, "Scenographic Play" at Tracy Williams, Ltd., 521 West 23rd Street, January 13 through January 29, with performances on January 13 and 15 at 7:30 p.m., tracywilliamsLtd.com

Tom Thayer's joint show with David Miko at the Kitchen has become the breakout word-of-mouth hit of early 2011, with those who've seen it singing its praises, and those who haven't asking for details. Now Thayer, a multimedia and video artist who had a captivating installation as part of Fionn Meade's "Knight's Move" show at Sculpture Center last year, is firing from his second barrel with a pair of performances at Tracy Williams, Ltd. Get there early.
