8 Things to Do in New York's Art World Before March 24

By Dan Duray, Andrew Russeth, Rozalia Jovanovic and Michael H. Miller

WEDNESDAY | Opening: Virginia Overton at the Kitchen

Ms. Overton has the rare ability to build grand objects, tinged with a bit of drama, out of quotidian materials. Some examples: three long sheets of plywood propped carefully between columns to form a triangle, an orange ladder wedged between two walls (in SculptureCenter's basement in 2009) and an old Chevy pickup truck sitting in a gallery. She'll have a show at Mitchell-Innes & Nash later this year. Join the fan club now. — Andrew Russeth

The Kitchen, 512 West 19th Street, New York, 6-8 p.m.
