TOO MANY CLOTHES

Linda Hill

February 15 - 17, 8pm

*...she dissects contemporary life and love...
a skillful parodist of female body language and fashion.*

—The New York Times

From the performance poet Negateeva to Cynthia Brewster, a nouveau riche social climber who loves the homeless—because they're in—Hill takes you on a comic ride across our urban landscape. Her characters are wild, witty and frightfully honest, ranging from cowgirl to callgirl, mundane to maddening. Bring your old clothes, they help the performance and the disadvantaged.
